Notice to Owner:

Under the California Mechanics Lien Law any contractor, subcontractor, laborer, supplier or other person who helps improve your property, but is not paid for his/her work or supplies, has a right to enforce a claim against your property. This means that after a court hearing, your property could be sold by a court office and proceeds of the sale used to satisfy the indebtedness. This can happen even if you have paid your contractor in full if the subcontractors, laborers or suppliers remain unpaid.

To preserve their right to file a claim or lien against your property, certain claimants such as subcontractors or material suppliers are required to provide you with a document entitled "Preliminary Notice". Original (or prime) contractors and laborers for wages do not have to provide this notice. A Preliminary Notice is not a lien against your property. Its purpose is to notify you of persons who may have a right to file a lien against your property if they are not paid (Generally, the maximum time allowed for filing a claim or lien against your property is ninety (90) days after completion of your project.)

To ensure extra protection for yourself and your property, you may wish to take one or more of the following steps: Require that your contractor supply you with a payment and performance bond (not a license bond), which provides that the bonding company will either complete the project or pay damages up to the amount of the bond. This payment and performance bond as well as a copy of the construction contract should be filed with the county recorder for your further protection.

Require that payments be made directly to the subcontractors and material suppliers through a joint control. Any joint control agreement should include the addendum approved by the Registrar of Contractors.

Issue joint checks for payment made out to both your contractor and subcontractor and or material supplier involved in the project. This will Help to insure that all persons due payment are actually paid.

After making payment on any completed phase of the project, and before making further payments, require your contractor to provide you with unconditional lien releases signed by each material suppliers, subcontractor and laborer involved in that portion of the work for which payment was made. On projects involving improvements to a single family residence or a duplex owned by individuals, the persons signing lose their right to file a claim against your property. In other types of construction this protection may still be important, but may not be as complete. To protect yourself under this option you must be certain that all material suppliers, subcontractors or laborers have signed.

Buyers Right to Cancel:

You may cancel the agreement or offer referred to above at any time prior to midnight of the third day (excluding Sunday) after the day you signed the agreement of offer.

You may give notice of cancellation by mailing a signed and dated statement to the seller at the address indicated. In order to have proof of mailing, it is recommended that you mail the statement by registered mail. If you do so, you should keep the slip the post office gives you.

In the event you cancel the seller must return to you (a) any payment made (less the cancellation fee) and (b) any goods or other property for a sum equal to the amount of the trade-in allowance given therefore, and (c) any note or other evidence of indebtedness given by you to the seller pursuant to or in connection with the agreement or offer. After cancellation the seller is entitled to receive back from you , at your address any goods previously delivered by him to you, providing he has returned any payment and goods or other received from you, to the extent indicated above.

If the seller does not call his goods at your address within 20 days after you give notice of cancellation, you may keep them as your own.

Addendum to contract regarding pricing and supply of materials:

SLO County Roofing will do everything possible to keep the materials costs to what is in this contract, however, due to the volatility of the materials market, the pricing for the materials portion of this contract may be adjusted to current pricing at the time that the job is complete. SLO County Roofing does not mark up their materials, and has no control over current pricing and future price increases. I understand that my final billing will reflect any increases in materials cost from the time this contract is signed to the time that the job is complete.

I also understand that supply issues are out of the control of SLO County Roofing. Delays in scheduling may happen due to this.
